Co-Operation Can Make Coleman Rodeo The Show of The Pass

Similar thrilling scenes such as this will be seen during Coleman's Annual Rodeo July 4 and 5.

Saddle bags will replace lunch buckets, and yippee's vie with the usual mine whistles in two weeks when the Coleman Board of Trade presents its annual rodeo, July 4 and 5. Indications of the work being done and the acts lined up point to this year's show being the best yet. A show demanding a great deal of organizing, and a large cash expenditure, it is worthy of the efforts and attendance of every citizen of this town.

Work is progressing favorably at the rodeo grounds to assure a well run performance and comfort for the patrons. Grounds chairman Jim Wilkie has expressed hope however that volunteers will be forthcoming to finish off the work.

The ball diamond will be removed to another section of the grounds and a permanent fence erected. Assistance will be needed in digging post holes and the stringing of wire and rails. The gate at the catch pens is also being moved and repairs are needed to the corrals. These labors along with the raking of the entire field involves a great deal of work, but can be accomplished without a great deal of time or energy spent should enough volunteer their services.

In past years merchants have co-operated favorably with the event by decorating their store windows, and it is hoped that their usual fine efforts will be evident again this year. Brass bands, pipe bands, and Indians in their colorful attire pave the way for a bang-up parade which can be greatly enhanced if a number of fine floats are entered. This is Coleman's big day... the day when the rest of The Pass gather in Coleman for their mid-summer merriment. Community effort and all-out co-operation can only result in the rodeo being the premier event of The Pass.

Advance literature and photos of the variety acts selected by the committee assures a well balanced and entertaining program, details of which will appear in the next issue of the Journal.

Ticket sale on the three valuable prizes is well under way and the prizes may be seen at Patinson's Hardware or the Modern Electric. It was hoped at the end of last week that a window would be made available to give these prizes greater display. The Cubs are handling the sale of the yellow tickets on a commission basis. This commission will accrue to the club to purchase equipment. Should any youngster approach you with a ticket remember that a ticket from a Cub serves a two-fold purpose... it helps the rodeo and it helps one of the finest organizations in the moulding of boys characters.

Two other associations putting their time behind this community effort are the local Elks and the Italian Lodge. Elks are handling the blue tickets and the Italian lodge the pink. As an inducement to these organizations there is offered a cash award and bonus totalling $100. To the organization selling the most tickets, providing each organization sells 100 books or more.

At the present time the Elks are busy with a similar project of their own but it is assured that they will put their efforts behind this community effort, and it is hoped that they will not suffer any ill effects in their own endeavour through their co-operation.

It's your show Coleman... let's make it a big one!

Dominic Rizzo Killed at Local Mine

Dominic Rizzo, 28, Italian immigrant was killed in the McGillivray mine of the Coleman Collieries on June 4. He had been riding the man-trip out of the mine after completing his shift when he fell from the air lock motive on which he was riding and was crushed to death by the locomotive.

Dominic had come to Canada from Italy a short time ago and gained employment as a chute loader at the McGillivray mine. He was a newly made member of the Italian lodge and was well liked by both countrymen and fellow workers.

He was predeceased by his father in Italy 3 months ago. Surviving are four brothers—Peter and Luigi of Coleman, and Carmello and John in Italy; two sisters Antonette and Titina, and his mother in Italy; and uncle Pete Rizzo of Coleman.

Funerals services were held on Saturday, June 7, from the Italian lodge Church services were held in the Holy Ghost church with Very Rev. Dean L. Sullivan officiating.

Interment followed in the Holy Ghost cemetery.

E. C. Bryant Is New Coleman Dentist

E. C. Bryant arrived here this week to take over the dental practice formerly conducted by Dr. Street.

Married and with one daughter, Mr. Bryant is a graduate of the University of Alberta, and saw service during the war with the R.C.A.F. Receiving his public and high school education at Moose Jaw, he returned to Saskatchewan last year to participate in the health program at Assiniboia as children's dentist. Mrs. Bryant is a graduate nurse, taking her training at the Royal Alexandra hospital in Edmonton.

Stores Will Close On Rodeo Day

At a meeting held in the Italian Hall, June 17, the local merchants decided in favor of closing their places of business on Saturday July 5th, Rodeo Day. They will remain open the following Monday, contrary to agreement, for the convenience of the public.

The merchants felt that in order that the rodeo may be successful, they would co-operate fully with the rest of the community by closing on this day.

A meeting of the executive of C.N.P. Merchants Assn. is scheduled to take place Wednesday June 18, when the executive will discuss the closing of stores throughout the Pass. Recommendations of the executive will be brought before the general meeting June 27th.

Council Holds Regular Meeting

The town council held its regular meeting in the council chambers on Tuesday, June 10 with councillors Toppino, Warren, Jenkins, Ramsay, and mayor N. E. Aboussay present. A letter will be sent to the Minister of Highways requesting that the stretch of road between the highway and Central Avenue be hard-surfaced.

A report from the fire commissioner's office and from the two members of the fire brigade attending the Civil Defence fire training course held at Lethbridge showed that J. Malanchuk and J. Kinnear each received a mark of 93%.

By-law 253 regarding equipment with trucks using the town roads, was given its second reading after being revised slightly.

The pension plan for permanent town employees will be introduced after settlement of a few minor points in the plan. Employees concerned in this plan were to meet on Saturday and it is expected that they will accept the plan.

The town council received notice from the provincial government that all plumbing will be left in the hands of the town. Fees for installation of plumbing will be the same as those charged under government regulations. J. Malanchuk was appointed plumbing inspector some time ago and he was instructed to see that plumbing installations meet government specifications. Plumbing permits are set at $5.00 for the first five fixtures and 25c to reach additional fixture.

CARD OF THANKS

The ladies of the Women's Association of St. Paul's United church would like to thank all those who helped in any way with the new kitchen, also the cleaning of the yard and the club rooms.

Special Rodeo Meeting Called

A meeting of the Board of Trade has been called for June 26, wherein it is hoped to smooth out all final arrangements for the forthcoming rodeo. In addition to a full turnout of members, it is hoped that representatives will be present from the following organizations.

Sports Association, Committee chairman, Polish Society, Elks Lodge, Canadian Legion, Italian Society, St. John Ambulance and the Polish Comanchero Association. Rodeo day is fast approaching and those interested in the event should attend this meeting.

School Addition Plans Approved

A letter was received by the school secretary from Mr. H. E. Balfour, Director of School Administration informing the board that the sketch plans for the two-room addition to the Cameron school were approved in principle. Final plans, tender and contract agreements will have to be submitted to the Department of Education for final approval.

A letter was also received from the grades 3 and 4 classes in the Cameron school thanking the board for the trip which these classes took to Lethbridge where they toured the dairies, McGavin's bakery and the museum.

The secretary was authorized by the board to renew the policy on the school insurance. The secretary reported that the premium has increased from $1595 to $1695.43, an increase of $100.43.

Advertisements will be placed in the provincial daily papers requesting applications for a grade 3 teacher. A letter was received from Miss Constance Alexander of Bellevue notifying the board of her acceptance of their offered position on the school staff.

Mr. Allen submitted his report for the month of May, which showed a total enrolment of 636 and an average attendance of 95.37%. The enrolment was 17 less than the previous month. He also reported that two of Mr. Spiller's pupils had received awards from the Banff School of Fine Arts with their entries in poetry.

The board closed the meeting upon acceptance of the financial statement and the inspector's report.

St. Alban's W. A. Elects Officers

The St. Alban's Women's Association held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. L. Sist, on Tuesday, June 3. The idea of a cook-book has been shelved for the time being, but it will be reconsidered in the New Year. The reason for this is that the ladies have found it very difficult to get sufficient advertising to help cover the cost of the book, and hope that they will have better luck next year. The raffling of a Christmas hamper was so successful last year that they propose to do the same this Christmas.

At the election of officers for the coming year, Mrs. Edith Clarke was elected President, Mrs. Grace Dunlop, secretary, and having made such a good job of being treasurer in the past year, Mrs. L. Sist was re-elected to that office. Mrs. R. Pattinson was elected vice-president. The officers for the past year were each presented with a gift of a cup and saucer as a sign of appreciation for their services.

The meeting finished up with a dainty lunch, and the decision to meet again in September.

Alex Easton Recalls Amusing Sport Incidents

As his contribution to the old-timers' series, Alex Easton, between chuckles, confined his story telling pretty well to sports in Coleman during the early part of the century. Being an ardent sport fan himself, it is only natural that his recollections of early Coleman centred on this topic.

During the years prior to 1910 and to some extent later, the only activities enjoyed by the major part of the population concerned sport of some kind. At that time, when the population of Coleman barely numbered 1000 attendance at sporting events was almost 100%. Attendance at the rink was always high, and most of the time there was only standing room. In the summer when soccer was played, the stores closed for an hour or hour and a half on Saturdays to allow everyone to attend the games even though they would be open until 9 o'clock normally. Football in the Pass was as good as could be found anywhere in Canada. Now with a much increased population, it is quite difficult to get a large attendance at any sporting event.

Alex tells of a humorous situation which developed in hockey during the 1906-7 season. The C.N.P. Hockey League comprised of teams from Macleod, Pincher Creek, Blairmore, Coleman, and Fernie, and the schedule was divided into two halves. Pincher Creek won the first half and Coleman won the second. It was decided that a home and home series be played to decide the winner. The first game was held in Pincher where Coleman took the bad end of an 11-1 or 11-3 score. So badly were they outclassed that the Pincher squad was certain to win the series. However, a few of the "sports" about town had a different idea in mind. They took it upon themselves to make certain that Coleman would win the next game at Coleman knowing that in doing so Coleman would have to lose the series by default. They brought in four players from the Trail and Rossland districts. These were Ellis, McWha, Paul and Jim Williams. The arena was then where the curling rink is at present and the rink was managed by Mr. Frank Graham's son. Before the game, the newly employed four were told to keep out of sight until the referee rang the bell for the players to appear on the ice. When they did appear the four reinforcements began to skate around the ice. Jim Williams was then considered the fastest skater that ever played pro. In the meantime the originators of the idea had placed heavy bets on the local squad, and in turn Pincher had taken up the bets, confident that they would win.

After a few warm-up turns around the rink, Jim Williams began to open up in front of the opposition. The Pincher team took one look, took off their skates, and caught the 9 o'clock train back for Pincher. Coleman, of course, lost by default. As no game was played, all bets were off, and the spectators lined up for their returned admission. A lot of people entered the rink without paying and went out by the way of the ticket booth where Mr. Graham was busily giving back the admission price. Extra money needed had to be taken out of the club's funds.

Another humorous incident told by Alex Easton took place during the fire in Coleman in the spring of 1906 when the buildings on the now present Cameron block were burned. The block in question was then made up of a two-storey structure at the west end, a drug store, Cameron's Jewellery store, a boarding house operated in conjunction with the Coleman Hotel, and Graham's barber shop in that order coming eastward along main street. The fire began in the boarding house, and spread to buildings to the east of it. Coleman had water hoses then but no hydrants. Hoses were attached to outlets at the coke-ovens and in the basement of the Coleman Hotel. By the time the hose connections were fitted and the hose laid under the track, the fire was well on the way.

In order to keep the fire low, it was decided to dynamite the buildings. A charge was placed under the chimney of Graham's building and set off. The result was that the chimney was hurled into the air almost intact but the building remained as it was.

Coming back to the present, Mr. Easton made a suggestion that should be taken seriously. As Coleman began in 1903, would it not be a good idea to celebrate its 50th anniversary some time next year?

Coleman Cadets Win Awards

2 Coleman Cadets were winners of awards at the combined annual inspection and parade held at the Hillcrest Ball Stadium last week. Cpl. Kent Foster was selected as the cadet showing the most advancement in one year, while Cadet Sgt.-Major Ken Laithwaite was judged the most outstanding cadet of the year.

On parade with Blairmore, Bellevue and Hillcrest Cadets, the Coleman boys took an active part in the proceedings and showed themselves well versed in the work. Sgt. D. Fraser gave a lesson on throwing the 36 grenade, Captain D. Vasek a lesson on the Bren Gun and Lt. W. Nell the Sten Gun. Award winners Laithwaite and Foster gave lessons on radio communications and sighting the 303 rifle respectively.

At the conclusion of the event Mr. D. J. Watson thanked the public for their large turnout, and praised the cadets on the fine training they had received. The Women of the Moose lodge of Hillcrest served refreshments.

Blood Donor Clinic Likely in Sept.

A meeting was held of the Women's Auxiliary to the C.N.P. hospital on Wed., June 4, in the recreation room at the hospital. The attendance was not as big as usual, about half the members being present. A Women's Auxiliary plan, designed by Birks was passed around to the members to see how many would be interested in getting one. The mention of the Blood Donors Clinic brought the information that it would probably be held sometime in September.

There will be a sewing meeting on June 10th, and another July 8th, for any members who can make those dates, all will be very welcome. It was agreed to suspend monthly meetings until September, but all members are asked to visit at the hospital whenever they can, and Matron Miss Clemis says that members are welcome, morning or evening.

A number of knitted baby garments were handed in and also linen that had been made up for the hospital by other members. The meeting finished earlier than usual, and a leisurely lunch was served.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY

SLEEPWALKER

By HELEN BEAL

Carl Said: "A Man in Love With His Wife Knows a Great Many Things."

THEY sat opposite each other. She picked up a spool of thread from the sewing box. The scissors made a small sound. A needle, quickly threaded, was imprisoned in the bright blue cloth. He looked up over his newspaper and tapped his pipe gently against the arm of the chair.

The light from the flame played across her face. He observed the way it accentuated the high cheekbones and highlighted her dark hair. The tense line of her mouth and small furrows between the widely spaced eyes gave her face an expression that was not quite familiar to him. He watched her, not bothering to pick up his paper again.

The clock on the mantelpiece ticked steadily. It made a sharp, almost petulant sound in the quiet room. She glanced up at it frequently.

"Julie," he said, gently, leaning forward so that his strong, rather irregular features were marked by the light of the flame, "you dislike that clock, don't you?"

"Of course not, Carl," she said.

"Why should I? It's a beautiful clock."

"Do you know what I'd do with it if I were you?"

"What?" she asked, knotting a bit of thread.

"Put it out of my sight once and for all."

"But why?"

"It seems to have a peculiar effect on me. I'd like you to get rid of it."

"Wouldn't that be rather foolish?"

"I don't think so," he said, slowly rolling his pipe.

"We still don't know who sent it to us," she said. "No card was enclosed."

"Come to think of it, there wasn't a card," he said.

Only there had been one. He remembered the morning the clock arrived. Fourteen cents had been due on the package. It was characteristic of Anne Halle to send something with postage due. And there was another in the title message which read: Happy anniversary to an up-and-coming architect and his wife. May you build much happiness together. Possibly the entire diffidence lay in the fact that Anne Halle had aspired to be a great actress. She had, in fact, even achieved some small success in her chosen profession. Only she hated giving up any part she had ever played—including himself as one of her potential leading men.

There had been just time enough to slip the card in his pocket when Julie walked into the room. He was certain he had convinced her the clock was probably from an old friend or a distant relative who had neglected the formality of enclosing a message. It was the second time Anne had sent them a gift on their anniversary. He had tolerated the first, elegant marble book-ends with his customary good humor. Julie had insisted upon keeping them. She knew all about Anne Halle because he had told her, and she knew he no longer gave her a second thought because he had told her that, too. But now, after two years, the gift of an expensive clock was contrived to mean more than sheer impertinence.

"Julie," he said, attempting to break up the strained conversation, "how about some coffee and a snack of something?"

"I'll join you," she said, tossing the scissors and spool of thread into the quilted basket.

"Would you like to share a little secret with me?" he asked, helping himself to cheese and crackers.

"What is it?" she asked, still absorbed in her own thoughts.

"You walk in your sleep."

She sat motionless, her hands in her lap. "I haven't done that in years, Carl. Not since I was a child. When—"

"Last night and a few nights before that."

"How far did I go?"

"The living room. Then back to bed."

"What did I do?"

"Nothing in particular," he said, after a moment's deliberation.

"Why didn't you wake me?"

"I thought I might frighten you. I'm sure," he said casually, "that sort of thing happens when you're worried about something. Would you like to tell me about it? We've never kept anything from each other."

"There isn't a thing bothering me," she said slowly.

"All right, Julie. Have it your way. I just thought I'd try to help."

"Thank you, Carl," she said softly, tension in her sensitive face again. In a little while she got up and cleared the table.

It was almost four the next morning when he heard her turn and get out of bed.

She walked slowly, with an uncanny sense of ease, till she reached the fireplace. A faint glow still lingered in the long since subdued logs. She moved cautiously, feeling along the mantelpiece.

Finally, she touched the clock. Her fingers grasped the edge of the frame.

"Julie!"

She started to talk but not in response to her name which he had just spoken. He stood still and listened. Then, very slowly, she began to walk back to the bedroom.

The crash was sharp and loud. He heard her stumble against a chair. For a moment, he thought she had fallen.

"Carl!"

"Don't get excited Julie. You'll be all right in a minute."

"What happened?"

"You walked in your sleep again."

"Oh, no, Carl! It frightens me to even think about it."

"I don't believe it's going to happen again."

"But the crash—"

"Incidental," he said, leading her back to the fireplace after switching on the light.

"I didn't, Carl!" The clock lay smashed to bits, small pieces of glass shattered against the log. "It was such a lovely clock. I couldn't possibly have been as heartless as all that."

"You talked in your sleep, too," she looked almost angelic in the small harbor of bright lamplight. "What did I say?"

"Four simple words: 'Stop trying, Anne Halle.'"

"Carl, how did you guess that I knew Anne Halle sent us the clock?"

"A man in love with his wife knows a great many things," he said gravely. "Remember that." He didn't bother to tell her, though, that he had taken the clock from her and thrown it in the fireplace himself.

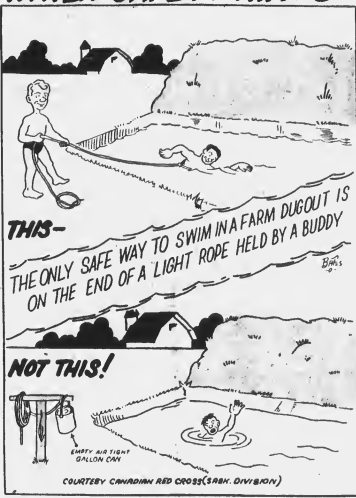

"I hope this is my last offense," she said.

"And Anne Halle's," he added. He would never know she returned his final kiss with a slight touch of guilt on her conscience. Because this had been one time she really hadn't walked in her sleep; to even the score, she had planned the very thing she had just accomplished with such skilled provence.

WATER SAFETY HINTS

Bathing or swimming in secluded, deep water holes such as farm dugouts has proven to be a risky pastime. It is better to stay out of such places or if one insists on entering a farm dugout, do so on the end of a light line which is held by a reliable companion on shore. The illustrated "Can Buoy" is useful only if there is someone who can throw it accurately to a person in trouble. To protect small children, fencing dugouts near the house is cheap insurance.

Calgary Man Operates A Most Unusual Bird Sanctuary

Situated in Midst of the Industrial Area. Quacking of Ducks Drown Out City Noise

CALGARY—George Pickering of Calgary considers himself a "brother to the old wild goose". Sole owner and operator of one of Canada's most unusual bird sanctuaries, he has devoted 26 years of his life to the care of wild fowl.

From a tiny plot back in 1926, Mr. Pickering has built the Ingewood Bird Sanctuary into a 400-acre feathered garden of Eden, lying entirely within the city limits.

Visitors to Calgary are always amazed to find the thriving sanctuary in the midst of heavy industry. A railroad runs beside the east gate. An oil refinery is within a stone's throw. But inside the fence urban noises are drowned out by the quacking of ducks and the rustling of wings.

The sanctuary includes two large islands, a peninsula, a 1½-mile stretch of the Bow river, enough land to lay out a golf course and a spring-fed lake which keeps the temperature of the water at exactly 44 degrees the year around.

Mr. Pickering, a former Alberta government fisheries employee, is the fond "father" of 30,000 birds which visit his haven each year and others which are steady boarders.

"Around Christmas time you can't see the water for the birds," says the 65-year-old naturalist.

Some of the birds have returned to the same nest for the last 15 years.

Mr. Pickering tells a "mother goose" story about one bird who hatched her brood on mother's day twice in three years. She chose the appropriate day two years ago. Last year she hatched her eggs a day after mother's day. But this year she was back on schedule.

Every Sunday afternoon, rain or shine, hundreds of visitors flock to the banks of the sanctuary streams with bags of crumbs and bread crusts. Since it was established, more than 250,000 persons have visited the site. Teachers and pupils, naturalists, bird-watchers and nature lovers of all kinds are regular visitors.

Walking along the shores one can see more than 19 different kinds of ducks and geese, to say nothing of swans, pheasants and partridges. There are even a few stately peacocks strutting about.

For a number of years, Mr. Pickering has conducted experiments in cross-breeding to derive a Canadian domestic bird. His cross-bred geese, unlike the farm variety, can swim and fly like the wild counterparts.

Perhaps the most amazing thing about the Ingewood Sanctuary is the fact that Mr. Pickering has worked and borne the expense all by himself. For more than a quarter century he has patiently toiled to supply a home for his feathered friends—and has never received a cent for his trouble.

REGINA—The little white scales are on the move. Regiments with spruce trees in their yards are advised by Parks Superintendent Bill Murray to be on the lookout for the little mites which are just hatching.

The method of combating the pest is to spray the trees with a mixture of dry lime, sulphur and water using one pound of sulphur to 12 gallons of water.

The process, which shouldn't be carried out in temperatures over 75 degrees, should be repeated at 10-day intervals for about one month.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Vacation Time

The time is fast approaching when we will hurriedly pack a few belongings and travel the country's highways and by-ways. Vacation time is just about on us. To some it will mean travel, to others, fishing, and to still others it will mean just staying home and digging that basement that was planned some years back.

However we may choose to spend it, we are all going to have a good time. We are all going to say "to the devil" with the mine, the store, or the truck, and just go.

Living in an almost closed valley like ours, we are likely to become a little narrow in our way of thinking. We eventually come to feel that this small valley is all the world and that anything outside this world cannot touch us. Even though we are touched by the daily newspapers and radios, we still can come to think in our own smug little ways. A yearly vacation to another part of the country or to our neighbors to the south can help clear the cob-webs of our stunted thinking and help us pick up new ideas, and give us a little larger bird's-eye-view of the world.

Unfortunately we cannot go to the far corners of the world. We cannot personally explore the Amazon, or go pearl fishing in the Pacific, or walk the busy streets of Bombay. But we should familiarize ourselves with at least part of our own continent, understand the varied interests of its peoples, and exchange some ideas about our welfare as a whole.

The world is growing all around us. In some places the growth is very rapid, while in others like our own, the growth is not noticed so quickly. What's going on beyond these hills? What do people think and do to the north of us? To the south? What new things have they dreamed up? What is the nature of their work? Well, let's go and find out!

For most of us, our education stopped when we left school, but it needn't stop there. People have different ideas, different methods of approaching daily problems. We can learn a lot from a farmer we may meet on the prairies, or a garage attendant in Montana, or an elevator worker on the Great Lakes. These people have a different slant on things. All we have to do is talk to them and our lives will be richer. They in turn will be enriched by their contact with us.

Let us then, on our vacation, go out and meet the world. Let's find out more about people and places. Canada is three thousand miles across. Let's talk to this Canada of ours. We have all those miles in which people think differently to some degree. Let's bring some of those ideas back home. Let's enjoy three thousand miles of good country instead of just forty.

CPR VICE-PRESIDENT MEETS

DIESEL PIONEER: A college thesis was responsible for a long delayed meeting in Montreal recently between the Russian scientist who designed and built the world's first diesel-electric locomotive (shown above) and the vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The story began when N. R. Crump (right), now vice-president of the C.P.R., was studying for his Bachelor of Science degree at Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind., and was renewed in 1936 while Mr. Crump was locomotive foreman at Moose Jaw, Sask., and was working on his thesis for his mechanical engineer's degree. His subject, "Internal Combustion Engines in the Railroad Field", was one that required a study of facts that were almost unobtainable at that time. Mr. Crump turned to the reports of Dr. George Vladimir Lomonosoff (left), a Russian mechanical engineer who had designed a diesel locomotive as early as 1909, and had one in operation in 1923, to get the information he needed. The 76-year-old Dr. Lomonosoff, whose son is a resident engineer with the Montreal Locomotive Works, has been living so quietly in Montreal for the past 2 years, that it was only recently that Mr. Crump learned of his presence in the city and arranged an interview. Modern C.P.R. diesel electric locomotive built by the Montreal Locomotive Works is shown in the picture behind Dr. Lomonosoff and Mr. Crump.

Weddings

LAITHWAITE — ARISTONE

Gladioli and roses adorned the altar of St. Albans Anglican Church at 5 p.m., May 24, when Miss Josephine Aristone, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Aristone of Coleman became the bride of Mr. Robert Laithwaite, eldest son of Mrs. Nora Goulding also of Coleman. Rev. Padre Moss officiated at the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of Chantilly lace with a train, featuring a bouffant skirt, standup collar and lily point sleeves. Her waist length veil was held in place by a tiara of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of deep red roses with white streamers holding tiny rose buds.

Preceding the bride down the aisle were five attendants. Senior bridesmaids were Miss Greta Lysek and Miss Margaret McLellan. Their gowns were identical except for color. Miss Lysek wore pink with white accessories while Miss McLellan wore yellow with white accessories. They carried bouquets of pink carnations.

Miss Nidia Alampi, cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid and wore an orchid colored gown with white accessories. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations also. Misses Arlene Marconi and Vivian Alampi were flower girls and wore sky-blue dresses in short style with white accessories. They carried a nosegay of white sweet peas centred with yellow roses.

Attending the groom was Kenneth Laithwaite, the groom's brother. Ushering the guests to the pews were James Ewing and Lewis Rizzo. Traditional nuptial music was played by Mrs. S. Penny. During the signing of the register, Mrs. H. McCabe, cousin of the bride, sang "O Perfect Love."

Following the ceremony a reception for the couple was held in the I.O.O.F. hall. The tables were beautifully laid with lace tablecloths and adorned with flowers. A three-tiered wedding cake centred the couple's table. Rev. Moss gave a few well chosen words for the occasion and Mr. Bert Bond proposed a toast to the newlyweds, who responded in a gracious manner.

At the closing of the festivities, the couple secretly departed for a short honeymoon. They will reside in Edmonton where the groom is employed.

Large Scholarship Plan Is Offered By Alberta Hotelmen

The largest and broadest scholarship plan ever offered to Albertans was outlined Tuesday by A. G. Swinarton, of Fort Macleod, Alberta Hotel Association president. Designed to assist several students annually, the program is sponsored by the licensed hotelmen of the province, through the Association. Mr. Swinarton revealed details of the plan during his presidential address at the A.H.A. 32nd annual convention at Edmonton.

Mr. Swinarton said that $15,000 would be available for scholarships this year. He added that the amount to be spent annually in future years would be double the amount spent on this year's inaugural scholarships.

Financial assistance to worthy students who otherwise would be deprived of their advanced education is provided by the program. A feature of the Alberta Hotel Association's Scholarship Plan is the fact that it will not be confined to University courses. For example scholarships may be granted to those pursuing the fields of agriculture, oil, forestry, mechanics, dress-making, nursing, teaching and other vocations.

The first A.H.A. Scholarships will be awarded following release of Grade XII departmental examinations. This year all scholarships will be tenable at the University of Alberta but this will not be the policy for future years.

Cubs Lose 3 Straight

The Coleman Cubs yearly finalists for the past number of years are at present holding the unenviable cellar spot in the league. To the present, they have played three games and lost them all. The first encounter of the season saw the locals bow to Blairmore 9-4, to Pincher 14-11 in their second try, and again to Blairmore 6-4 for their third straight loss.

Manager Angelo Gentile is optimistic however. This year there remains only three veterans in the squad with experience in the rookies sadly lacking. He states, however, that they are willing to learn, and with a little experience, the time when the club will be gunning for the top is not far off. The major problem at present seems to be hitting power which he expects to develop shortly as the players look promising.

Next scheduled game will be played Wednesday against Michel at Michel.

OIL CREW PASSES THROUGH ENROUTE TO NEW SITE

THE DANDELION

The dandelion so yellow and bright.

Where it comes from no one seems to know.

But I think it was brought here by some living friend.

From far away lands And planted in loving memory in our Canadian soil.

God made the rose and the lily grand.

He too made the humble dandelion.

The dandelion so beautiful and bright.

Grows outside my garden gate Peeking through, sees the violets blue.

There it stands with gentle grace The dandelion as God had made it.

Lovely, yellow and bright.

However, on June 24 and 25 the lovers of musical films will be offered "Painting the Clouds with Sunshine". A story of three girls who go to Las Vegas in search of millionaires but find love instead. Sakall. Lucille Norman and Dennis Morgan team up to sing the songs you like the way you like them.

What it means to win a radio jackpot is shown on the screen June 28 and 30 with James Stewart starring in "The Jackpot". An amusing story of the troubles and problems that comes with wealth and the ever present income tax problem. It will keep you chuckling for days, after.

Canada's Farm Lands

THROUGHOUT THE PAST YEAR interesting information concerning various phases of life in Canada have been made public, as facts gathered in the taking of the 1951 census have been assembled by the statisticians. Among these many facts were some concerning the farming population and the areas of farm land under cultivation in Canada at the time the census was taken. The figures show that there are 54,509 fewer farms now than there were in 1941, but that the number of acres of farm land under cultivation has increased by 480,591. The largest increase in farm acreage has been in British Columbia, where 16.6 per cent. more land is now being farmed. The number of farms in that province has increased by 21.1 per cent., showing that the average holding there is now smaller than it was ten years ago.

Figures Show Fewer Farms

The other Western provinces all show decreases in the number of occupied farms in the ten year period. Saskatchewan had 138,713 occupied farms in 1941 and 112,018 in 1951. In Manitoba there was a drop from 58,024 to 52,333, while in Alberta there were 99,732 occupied farms in 1941 compared to 84,315 today. Several reasons are given for this drop in the number of occupied farms. The trend toward consolidation of farms in some places accounts in part for it, while the use of farm lands for pasture has also contributed to the decline. A shift in population to the cities has taken many from the farms, while the rapid growth of nearly all our larger cities has resulted in the taking in of farm lands in the surrounding areas.

Reasons Given For Decrease

Some of the decreases may also be explained by the fact that in 1941 a farm was described as "one acre or more of land which had yielded agricultural products worth fifty dollars or more in 1940." In the 1951 census, a farm was designated as "a holding of three acres or more on which agricultural operations are carried out, or from one to three acres with agricultural production in 1950 valued at two hundred and fifty dollars or more." While the figures have shown a decrease in the number of farms, they have also shown an increase in the acreage under cultivation in all the Western provinces. In Saskatchewan the number of acres under cultivation has risen in the last ten years from 59,960,927 to 61,665,195. In Alberta it has risen from 43,277,295 to 44,459,632, while in Manitoba the increase has been from 15,891,522 to 17,730,383. In many countries all the land suitable for the growing of crops has long since been brought under cultivation, and Canada is fortunate in being one of those in which agriculture is still an expanding industry.

CANADA NOW HAS EIGHT LEPERS

OTTAWA.—Canada now has a total of eight lepers—two less than last year—which she maintains at two coastal colonies at a cost of about $22,000 a year, Health Minister Martin said.

He told the Commons it costs $7,450 a year to maintain the colony at Benick Island in B.C. where three leper patients live and $14,700 to maintain the other at Tracadie, N.B., where there are five patients.

MASS PRODUCTION OF POLIO VACCINE IN TWO YEARS

MELBOURNE, Australia.—Sir Macfarlane Burnet, director of a medical institute here, has announced that an effective polio vaccine may be in mass production within two years. He said the vaccine of living tissue could be injected into the children between the ages of one and two, to provide immunization against polio.

BE BUDGET-WISE. USE EGGS

The old question "which came first the chicken or the egg" is still a moot point, but home-makers agree that when it comes to lower cost foods the egg is one of the first on the list these days.

Canada's Food Rules state that we should have at least three eggs each week. So, while the prices are low, help the food budget and the menu by serving eggs frequently. Eggs are such a versatile food that one famous chef was led to remark "the egg is the cement that holds the castle of cookery together." Following are two "quicks" for the main course at luncheon or supper.

Egg Sandwich a la King

- 1 can (10 oz.) condensed cream of mushroom, chicken or celery soup
- 4 tablespoons milk
- 4 to 6 hot hard-cooked eggs, peeled
- 8 slices hot buttered toast

Combine soup and milk and heat. Slice hard-cooked eggs. Lay 4 sandwiches with the hot buttered toast and half the egg slices. Season with salt and pepper. Place on individual serving plates. Place remaining slices of eggs on top of sandwiches and cover with the hot soup. Garnish with sprigs of parsley or sprinkle with paprika. Serve with a crisp green salad. Yield: 4 servings.

Baked Eggs With Green Beans

- 1 can (10 oz.) condensed tomato soup
- 10 oz. water
- 1 cup dry bread crumbs
- 1 cup cooked green beans (fresh, frozen or canned)
- 1 teaspoon onion
- 1/2 cup grated cheese
- 4 eggs

Mix soup and water (measured in soup can). Add crumbs, vegetables, and cheese. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Pour into greased baking dish. Break eggs one at a time into cup or saucer and slip into depressions made with a spoon in the tomato mixture. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 deg. F., about 20 minutes or until eggs are set. Sprinkle with a little extra grated cheese just before serving if desired. Yield: 4 servings.

Hog Sales In Manitoba Up

WINNIPEG, Man.—Hog marketings in Manitoba from Jan. 1 to May 17 show a 50 per cent. increase over the corresponding period in 1951. The provincial department of agriculture reported.

Indications are the peak of the heavy marketing now is past, the department said. Cattle marketings for the same period were down 15 per cent. with most of the decrease taking place since the foot-and-mouth disease outbreak.

Butterfat production is about 20 per cent. above a year ago, the department said. Lack of rain caused a serious pasture condition and many farmers were forced to feed to maintain milk flow.

Egg marketings reached a peak May 10, well above that of 1951. The regular seasonal decline now was evident and egg quality had deteriorated sharply this year. Poultry meats in storage remained high with current marketings considerably in excess of local consumption.

Regina's Gift Goes To Children

On behalf of Queen Elizabeth, Governor-General Vincent Massey presents a certificate to Hon. J. C. McEwen, signifying the gift of 500 bushels of wheat to the Children's Fund. The wheat was given to Her Majesty by the city of Regina during her visit to Canada, and she, in turn, turned it over to the fund, which raised $7,000 by its sale. The fund supplies food and clothing to Europe's needy children.—Central Press Canadian.

Funny and Otherwise

The barber had cut him, nicked him, and gashed him. "Give me a glass of water, please," gasped the victim. "You aren't going to faint, I hope?" asked the barber in alarm. "No," replied the victim, "I just want to see if my mouth still holds water."

Motorists entering Williston Park, L.L., are greeted by the following sign:

"Go slow, see our shops, 'Go fast, see our cops.'"

A bus conductor handed back the quarter to a woman passenger. "It's spurious," said, examining the coin. "Why, it's dated 1932. It would have been noticed before if it had been bad."

As two flies were enjoying a promenade on the ceiling one said:

"Aren't those human beings silly?"

"How do you mean," asked the other.

"Well," said the first, "they spent a lot of money building a beautiful ceiling like this, then they go and walk on the floor."

"I've got you; you're my one and only husband."

"Yes, if there were two or three more of us we might be able to make ends meet."

"You told me you had to see the dentist yesterday, but I saw you at the football match."

"Yes, sir. The dentist plays in goal."

"If you're the lady who lifted mother's face," said the small boy at the beauty parlour, "you'd better come round and lift father's. He's just got your bill!"

Daffy: My uncle is quite a guy. He not only is an Elk, but he's a Moose as well.

Guffy: Boy, I'll bet every zoo in the country is after him.

A man, obviously distressed, rushed into the bar of his club and ordered and drained two double whiskies. Asked what troubled him, he said, "My wife's just eloped in my car with my best friend."

"Good Heavens!" said a fellow member, sympathetically. "Not your new car?"

"What did the boss say to you when he called you in?"

"He asked whether I couldn't sandwich in a little more work, as I always seemed to have a long enough loaf."

A life insurance agent was trying to convince a prospective customer. Finally, he said: "Why, insurance is the greatest thing in the world. No man should be without it. I even carry a $25,000 policy myself, payable to my wife."

"That's too much," snorted the harassed prospect, "what excuse can you possibly give her for living?"

"Lilliputian" Vole Is No. 1 Enemy To Many Farmers

WINNIPEG, Man.—The "Lilliputian" vole, public enemy No. 1 to many Canadian farmers, was blamed for millions of dollars crop damage across the prairies. The tiny, furtive and extremely prolific prairie vole often is erroneously referred to as the Meadow Mouse.

The vole who feasts, while ducks, deer, elk and other wildlife get most of the blame for the damage, is noted in scientific observations as ravagers of grain fields in eastern Canada as early as the 17th century. Scientists call it "one of the greatest destroyers of crops in history."

George Freeman, project manager for the Strathmore area of southern Alberta, reported:

"A very amazing feature this spring is the number of mice observed. They are the short-tailed variety which is quite adept at swimming. The animals literally millions of them in the fields and over the roads."

He said oat crops were almost completely ruined by the mice and wheat had suffered considerably. "On the brighter side, however, is the fact that these tiny animals are now doing by the thousands—another instance of Nature striking her balance."

Officials of the wildlife group here explained that these were only present-day examples. They said an Old Testament reference to voles, covering a plague presumably visited upon the Philistines, stated:

"Mice were generated and banded over the towns and fields in the midst of that region, and there was a confusion of death in all the land."

Aristotle wrote this of the voles: "The rate of propagation of field mice in country places, and the destruction they cause, are rare beyond all telling."

Current investigation indicates the vole has survived the passage of time much more successfully than most of the ancient civilization. An almost unheralded menace to crops and, insofar as Western farmers are concerned, one which is widely tolerated.

In 1669, one historian recorded that "The Island of St. John (Prince Edward Island) is stated to be visited every seven years by swarms of locusts or field mice alternately."

After they ravage the land, they (mice) precipitate themselves into the sea."

Records in Nova Scotia show the province experienced one of its greatest outbreaks of mice in 1815. The extent of crop damage was undetermined, but the record states, "by midsummer they had destroyed great quantities of hay and grain."

During the autumn of 1900 great numbers of mice over-ran central Saskatchewan and central Alberta, according to the American naturalist, Preble, who had studied the vole extensively in western Canada.

Preble, in a report on his findings, said "they also multiplied in some parts of Manitoba and all over the middle-west a great deal of grain was devoured by them, both in fields and store-houses."

The exercising muscles don't need as much blood then especially those of lower animals who have the good sense to go to sleep after a meal. Human beings, sometimes unfortunately, can overcome their basic animal impulses and exercise right after eating.

When a muscle is working, it needs more oxygen and food energy. More blood is needed to bring these elements as well as carry away waste from the muscle. When Johnny jumps up from stuffing himself at a picnic lunch, dives in, and begins violent exertion in swimming, his muscles burn more oxygen than they are supplied with. Blood is mostly going into the internal organs to take care of that huge meal he just ate.

When a muscle doesn't have enough oxygen, it hurts. It may even tighten up into a rigid knot-like mass. This is particularly likely if it is also stimulated by the sudden shock of cold water.

Those who have had a foot cramp at night know how painful it is. They realize how helpless they would be if stranded in water with such a cramp.

Other things make such swimming cramps more likely to occur. Lack of enough calcium in the diet, such as in milk, set up muscles for easy cramping. Not being in top physical form favors cramps.

At the beginning of warm weather, many people are not in shape to plunge into a lot of exercise. Fatigue from lack of sleep or too hard play earlier in the day is another factor which will help bring about swimming cramps.

You may save your boy's life if you will see that he gets enough rest, eats enough calcium-containing foods, and stays out of the water for at least an hour after eating. And when he does go swimming, taking a companion along is good insurance. One can save the other if a cramp comes on.

Running the Bases

By failing to give ample attention to running the bases, the average player and team coach fail to take advantage of one of the most important skills in baseball. Here are a few pointers which should be of great help to you.

1. Get away to a quick start from the plate, don't stand there and watch to see where you have hit the ball or if it's a safe hit. If you get going right after you have hit the ball you will (a) have a better chance of beating the throw to first base, or (b) get extra bases on a safe hit.

2. Always run out every hit. If the fielder fumbles, you have a good chance of getting on base and he is a potential run scorer for your team.

3. Learn to round the bases properly. Here's how: to avoid going too wide when going from one base to another make sure you hit the bag on the infield side with your right foot. As you hit it, lean well over to your left and bring your left leg over toward the next base with a quick, decisive "pivot" as you turn toward the next base on your right foot. This turning action will save you yards. Practice this as often as you have time for.

4. If you have hit safely to the outfield always make the turn at first base toward second. If the fielder fumbles then you can often stretch a single into a double putting your self into a scoring position. Remember—don't overrun first base on a hit to the outfield.

The "Ready" Stance in Tennis

While waiting for your opponent to return the ball hold your racket in front of you with a relaxed grip—right hand in the usual position, left hand by the throat of the racket held with the thumb and forefinger. This will not only improve your balance it will also mean you are ready to shift your grip quickly to either Eastern forehand or Eastern backhand grip. Keep your arms and shoulders relaxed, bend your knees a little, face the spot from where the ball is being hit and keep your legs comfortably apart—weight placed evenly on both feet.

Hard Work Makes the Champion

In a recent column the importance of "desire" was stressed, but, as members of Sports College Testing Groups have found out, "desire" by itself is not enough. You must follow up by directing your ambition and keenness into practical channels. There is no easy way to succeed, there are no "inside" tracks that will take the place of hard work. The smart athlete stops looking for the easy way—he gets down to business and works hard at developing skill, at acquiring new knowledge. Instead of kidding himself and taking it easy as often as he can, the smart athlete tries to pile up those hours of hard work because he knows that every time he adds another hour to the pile he gets a little closer to the top of the heap.

AN ANNIVERSARY WISH

As you travel down the sunset path together
And draw closer to the end of life's long day,
May your hours be filled with richest memories,
And with true friendship along the way.

May the love of sons and daughters ever bless you,
Small children bring you all their pleasures gay
To make the sunset trail a path of beauty
As you travel it serenely day by day.

As you travel it serenely day by day,

FLIES 1,550 MILES IN FOUR HOURS—Queen Mother Elizabeth and Princess Margaret, in one of Britain's Comets, the world's fastest jet airliners, flew to the Mediterranean between lunch and bedtime. They travelled 1,550 miles between 12:25 p.m. and 4:10 p.m. They were in the air for three and three-quarter hours. Here the Queen Mother turns to comment on the view over northern Italy.—Central Press Canadian.

Young Farmers Of Britain To Visit Canada, U.S.

LONDON.—The Queen of Britain's farmers, Dodo Griffiths, of Tregaron, Wales, has been chosen to promote British life and farming methods on a five-month goodwill tour of Canada and the United States.

Dodo, 21, voted "Rally Queen" by more than 1,000 farmers last year, is one of six members of the National Federation of 1,383 young farmers' clubs who are making the tour.

The party will arrive in Quebec aboard the Anand Line's Samara June 13th and will spend the first month of their tour as guests of the Junior Farmers of Ontario.

In the U.S., they will be guests of the 4-H clubs and the future Farmers of America Organization.

Besides farming 27 acres and looking after 12 dairy cattle and 60 head of poultry, Dodo is a licensed auctioneer—thought to be the only woman livestock auctioneer. "At first I got extra hiding because farmers liked the look of me," she said, "Now they have got used to the idea."

The U.S. army jeep derived its name from the letters "G.P.", meaning general purpose vehicle.

Parasites May Wipe Out Tent Caterpillars

WINNIPEG. — An army of parasites from Minnesota may march on Manitoba to clean out an infestation of tent caterpillars—caterpillars who attacked from south of the border.

If not, the caterpillars will be even worse next year, Raymond Lejune, officer in charge of the Federal Forest Biology laboratory at the University of Manitoba, said.

He has just inspected the caterpillar invasion in the Whiteshell protected reserve, 60 miles east of Winnipeg.

He said the caterpillars spread to Manitoba from northern Minnesota, where disease and parasites are expected to wipe them out this year.

"If the parasites spread up here quickly enough they could destroy the caterpillars this year," said Mr. Lejune.

"But if they don't the infestation will be even worse next year before the parasites can get them."

RAIN RECORD

World record for the most rainfall in a single day is believed to belong to Baguio, Philippine Islands, with 45.99 inches.

FIRST AID

First Aid is just what the two words imply, namely the earliest possible intelligent aid or help given to the victim of an accident or sudden illness. This aid is usually of a temporary nature only, to be given at once, at the scene of the accident or sudden illness and before a doctor is available to assume responsibility.

WOUNDS WITH SPECIAL INFECTIONS

TETANUS (Lockjaw)

The germs which cause this dreadful and oft times fatal disease are found normally in the intestine of horses and other animals; therefore also in the manure from these animals and in stables, on highways, as well as in fields, gardens and lawns, etc., which are fertilized with this manure. A person's shoe may become contaminated and the germs may thus be carried into a house.

These special germs may assume a very resistant form which lies dormant under conditions of freezing or heat, but will become active when introduced into a wound under conditions favourable to their growth. Fortunately, these germs cannot live and multiply in the presence of oxygen and most wounds have a plentiful supply of oxygen from the circulating blood.

Certain wounds (punctured or lacerated) may contain damaged or dead tissues, especially muscle or blood clot which receive no oxygen from the circulating blood and are thus favourable sites for the tetanus germs.

Wounds of the feet and lower legs are particularly liable to this infection because of more frequent contact with infected soil. The wound may be a puncture, laceration or frost bite with cracks or blistering.

First Aid—The duty of the First Aider is to recognize the type of wound which is liable to Tetanus infection and get the victim to a doctor at once.

The First Aider can do no more than to apply dressings called for by the wound. The doctor on the other hand has a very potent remedy in Tetanus Antitoxin which he injects into the victim and a very special method of treatment in dealing with this type of wound. To be successful in his treatment, the doctor must receive the victim without delay.

Death from Tetanus has been very common in all wars including the World War of 1914-18. But in the last World War 1939-45, deaths from this disease were very few because all troops were inoculated with Tetanus Toxoid. To further protect against the infection, the wounds were promptly cleared of all dead or dying tissue and large doses of Tetanus Antitoxin were promptly given.

Gas Gangrene

The germs which cause Gas Gangrene are very similar in their habits to those of Tetanus. They are found in heavily manured soil and in the intestine of both man and animals. They can grow only in the absence of oxygen. Therefore they are liable to infect the same type of wounds. They differ from Tetanus infection in the speed with which they spread and kill the victim, viz.—about four days from the time of wounding. The First Aider must therefore act just as promptly in getting the victim to the doctor.

BEEF FOR BRITAIN

VANCOUVER.—Shipment of more than 4,000,000 pounds of frozen beef—the heaviest shipment of its kind in Vancouver's history—is being consigned to Britain.

Weekly Tip

BURNING FAT

Never pour water on burning fat as it will spread the blaze. Extinguish the blaze with flour or sand.

World Happenings Briefly Told

Historical relics collected by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will be placed in a museum to be built in the General's home town, Abilene, Kan.

Prime Minister Sidney Holland announced recently that his government had invited the Defence Minister, Earl Alexander of Britain to visit New Zealand after his forthcoming tour of Japan and Korea.

An aerial survey, first major survey of its kind in Pakistan, will be carried out shortly with assistance of Canadian experts in such photographic work. The survey is to aid in various development projects.

Norwegian Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts are doing their good deeds in mass performances. A total of 2,000 volunteered for a recent weekend job of collecting paper and rubbish strewn by hikers in nearby woods.

The Royal Navy is experimenting with a pre-fabricated 26-foot long motor launch which can be packed flat. Made of aluminum alloy and capable of carrying 12 persons, it will be the first of its kind to be built on naval specifications.

The Queen has given three camellia bushes for West Berlin's British-sponsored "English Garden" which will be opened in the war-devastated tiergarten soon to mark "the close and friendly relations between the British and Berliners."

Fifty-eight persons were injured in Rome, Italy, because a street-car driver got thirsty, the driver left the car to get a drink of water. His car's brakes slipped and it plunged downhill, crashing into another at an intersection.

Add interesting dogs: Sole Survivor, bulldog of London. Named Sole Survivor because he was the only one of a litter to survive. Is now a champion show dog. Sole Survivor has his own bedroom. Sleeps in a four-poster bed. Not only that, he sleeps under sheets and blanket. He is fond of cats. Frequently has cats as weekend guests. The cats sleep in special baskets. Sole Survivor, a perfect gentleman, never retires until his cat guests climb into their baskets for the night.

It's She Who Must Pay

The average housewife in Norway works 58 hours a week. How does your homemaking schedule compare with that? . . . If the escort of a young woman at a restaurant or night club hasn't enough money to pay the check it's up to her to make good. She's equally responsible and can be arrested for trying to defraud a cafe-owner. That's the law in most sections. . . . It is said of the French that they have a book on every subject. The English are not far behind in that respect. Recently published in England is a monumental work by C. Willett and Phillis Conington titled "The History of Underclothes." . . . The cleverest speculator of the five Rothschild brothers was Nathan. He multiplied his original capital 2,500 times in five years. Now there is a "finger watch." This timepiece, originated by a Swiss manufacturer, is so small it can be set in a platinum finger ring.

As Junior Sees Papa

"What's wrong with your parents?" That is a question put to a group of school children. There should be a law against putting such a query to a group of youngsters. Anyway, the kids answered willingly, some of them enthusiastically. As usual the fathers got the worst of it. One youngster said: "My father always says, 'Ask mother'. He should have a mind of his own."

How To Get Rid of a Man

"Those 'how to lead a man' articles are still numerous," writes a feminine subscriber. "No wonder men are so insufferably egotistical. They have the idea millions and millions of women are worrying about holding a man. For a woman of intelligence, holding a man is a simple matter. The baffling problem is how to get rid of a man. Divorce doesn't always solve that problem. Nowadays, it is usually the ex-husband who carries the torch. It can be very irritating, embarrassing and downright dangerous to have an ex-husband with a torch-carrying complex in circulation. Some advice on how to get rid of a man and make him like it would be most welcome to many women. Another thing: why are men not urged to study the matter of holding a woman? Why are they not advised to make and keep themselves attractive, pleasant, considerate and intelligently affectionate, etc?"

Cartwheels Before Breakfast

Mistiguesse, the perennial darling of Paris, says she owes her youthful figure to the fact she does several cartwheels every morning. Keep that in mind, mister. If your wife shows signs of possibly not looking so well in a bathing suit this summer have her do a couple of cartwheels before breakfast.
